Recovery System for Rejected Inserted Newspapers Muller Martini Mailroom Systems (MMMS) is a division of Muller Martini Group headquartered in Switzerland. MMMS is the innovation leader and supplier of high speed newspaper inserters, press conveyors, mailroom auxiliary equipment and production system software.

MMMS has a local production facility that produces inserted newspapers on state of the art inserting machines. These newspaper inserters have detection and release units to drop out defective newspapers – but no way of easily saving the product.

Maintaining the integrity of the inserted newspapers after they have been determined to be defective so that they can be manually de-inserted and the parts of the newspaper reused in the inserting process is the problem on which the team will focus their attention. The solution should not take up more floor space than two pallets and have a manufacturing cost of less than $2,500. It must be safe to the untrained person and simple to use as unskilled temporary help will be assigned to this task.
