Greater Lehigh Valley, PA — The Lehigh Valley and Berks County Workforce Investment Boards, Lehigh Nanotech Network and Manufacturers Resource Center, with the support of many partners, will host Nano for Business 2008 on Thursday, May 22, 2008 at Tekpark, 9999 Hamilton Street, Breinigsville, PA on Route 222 from 7:45 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Nano for Business 2008 will explore nanotechnology, current commercial applications and future potential, government research and funding, and available regional resources. This interactive event will provide a forum for business leaders to learn how nanotechnology is currently used and how it can positively impact their business, enhance productivity, enhance competitiveness and improve their bottom line.

The conference will feature distinguished speakers, roundtables, workshops and provide resources for: research and technology; nanotechnology education, workforce training and development; nano product development methods and funding sources; and how to simplify the path to commercialization.

Featured speakers include Rebecca Bagley, Deputy Secretary of the PA Department of Community and Economic Development, Jurron Bradley from Lux Research, and industry leaders. Call the Lehigh Valley Workforce Investment Board, Inc. at 610-841-1162 for more information or to reserve your seat!

Registration is $25 per person.

Nano for Business 2008 is supported by: PA Department of Labor and Industry, Lehigh Valley Workforce Investment Board, Inc., Lehigh Nanotech Network, Lehigh Center for Advanced Materials and Nanotechnology, Manufacturers Resource Center, Berks County Workforce Investment Board, Greater Reading Chamber of Commerce & Industry, Lehigh Career & Technical Institute, Lehigh Carbon Community College, Northampton Community College, Reading Area Community College, Berks Economic Partnership, Met-Ed, A FirstEnergy Company, The Pennsylvania Nanofabrication Manufacturing Technology Partnership, Penn State University Center for Nanotechnology Education and Utilization, Southside Bethlehem and Greater Reading Keystone Innovation Zones.
