Featuring New LNN Sustaining Member Company: Particle Sciences

Particle Sciences is a full-service contract research organization with GMP/GLP analytic and bioanalytic labs in addition to well-equipped formulation, characterization and clean room facilities. We provide an integrated suite of drug development services aimed at minimizing the time and risks of drug development. We focus on semisolids, suspensions, particulates and drug/device products, with additional specialized capabilities in topical and mucosal drug delivery. As our name implies, we are expert in fine-particle and nanotechnology approaches and regularly deal with challenging APIs.

Particle Sciences provides contract drug development services and brings nearly two decades of expertise providing an efficient suite of preformulation, formulation, analytic and manufacturing services. A responsive and collaborative approach ensures that the objectives of all clients, large and small, are successfully met on
