

Dr. White is Professor and Coordinator of the Educational Leadership program at Lehigh. This program specializes in the training and development of national and international school leaders. While at Lehigh Dr. White has been responsible for the development of a specialized program to train individuals for leadership roles in urban school districts. He currently directs a US Department of Education funded project to design a Leadership Academy for aspiring principals in the School District of Philadelphia in partnership with the National Association of Elementary School Principals (NAESP). In addition, he developed and currently directs a Leadership Academy for in-service principals and assistant principals in partnership with the Colonial Intermediate Unit. This program is partially funded by a New Ventures grant from the Wallace Foundation. He has also been instrumental in establishing the first ongoing telecommunication program in the College of Education and developed the International School Leadership degree programs. These programs are designed to prepare individuals for school leadership positions in the Overseas School Program.

Dr. White directs the Lehigh University Middle Level Partnership, a venture designed to assist schools in improving the education of pre-adolescent students, and currently serves on the Research Committee of the National Middle School Association. He is a nationally recognized consultant, having worked with over sixty school districts, educational organizations and colleges and universities in addressing the issues associated with organizational development and change, partnership development, strategic planning, and topics relating to middle level education. He has published numerous articles on these topics and has authored a book, which deals with the issue of implementing community service into the school curriculum. Dr. White is a Class of '61 Endowed Professor at Lehigh University and has received the Lehigh University Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching and the University Hillman Award for Excellence in Graduate Student Advising.
