

Gautam Kudva

Gautam graduated with his Ph.D. in Mechanical engineering from Penn State in 2001.

At Corning Incorporated, Gautam has worked in a number of roles in manufacturing and engineering as well as in research and development. Over the last decade, he has been focused in research and development of new technologies in forming and finishing of display glass and spent five of those years leading a Forming technology development program in Japan.

He enjoys running and skiing, as a means for recreational fitness and stress relief, and hopes he has another year before his daughters start beating him.
